

The world of plants

written by
Jimmy Singh

Plants are very important. They provide animals with oxygen and food.

Plants are living things. They always stay in the same place. They cannot move about.

We do not know exactly how many different plants there are in the world, but we do know there are over three hundred thousand types of plants.