Let's visit Europe! It's the second smallest continent after Oceania. But it is the home of many interesting people, towns, cities, natural landscapes and archaeological sites. It has an area of 10.18 million square kilometres and a population of nearly 750 million people! More than 100 different languages are spoke in Europe. It is a region of immense diversity. Lose yourself in the many wonders of Europe!

In thousands of years Europe has changed a lot. The earliest Europeans built large monuments with blocks of stone. The Stonehenge stone circle, in England, is one of the best-known prehistoric monuments in Europe. It was built about 5,000 years ago. Why did they build it? Today, the most-accepted theory is that it was a temple aligned with the movements of the Sun. Would you like to see the sunset there?
